Abstract Adolescent resilience research differs from risk research by focusing on the assets and resources that enable some adolescents to overcome the negative effects of risk exposure. We discuss three models of resilience—the compensatory, protective, and challenge models—and describe how resilience differs from related concepts. The Bayley-III Motor Scale - ScienceDirect Ocular movements are foundational to a child's development of eye-hand coordination. Control of eye movement develops early, at 1–4 months, and is instrumental to an infant's desire to raise his head, to hold his head upright and steady in order to visualize his environment (Jouen, Lepecq, Gapenne, & Bertenthal, 2000). Eye gaze and tracking are among the first ways that an infant shows ...
